Jozankei Onsen

Often called "netsu no yu" (hot spring for heat), Jozankei Onsen's sodium components adheres to the skin to seal heat in and warm you up from the inside, making you sweat to detox your body, improve joints and ease your stress.

Hoheikyo Onsen

Known as "bijin no yu" (hot spring for beautifying), the calcium/sodium hydrogen carbonated water of Hoheikyo Onsen makes your skin soft while washing away sebum and impurities for a smooth and clean finish.

Koganeyu Onsen

Called "shinzo no yu" (hot spring for the heart), the sulphuric nature of Koganeyu Onsen boosts blood circulation and expands blood vessels, helping to burn sugar and fat in the blood and effective against for metabolic syndrome and lifestyle-related diseases.

Usubetsu Onsen

Known as "bijin no yu" (hot spring for beautiful skin), the calcium/sodium hydrogen carbonated water of Usubetsu Onsen makes your skin soft and clean by removing dead skin cells and dirt in the pores.

Four types of natural hot springs created by the power of nature

The ground water under the rich forests of Jozankei selected as one of the 100 Best Water Source Forests by the Forestry Agency, became the hot spring source of Jozankei Onsen, Koganeyu Onsen, and Hoheikyo Onsen, Usubetsu Onsen. It is said that bathing in naturally gushing hot springs such as Jozankei Onsen and Koganeyu Onsen is beneficial, yet their efficacy is unknown. Enjoy the richness and quality of the hot spring water of this region.

History of Jozankei

The hot spring opened by Miizumi Jozan has been healing people until today.

Jozankei Onsen was named after Miizumi Jozan, a monk who devoted his life to clearing the way for therapeutic hot spring baths in this area and laid the foundation for the present day Jozankei Onsen. Around 150 years ago, amidst the upheaval of the Meiji Restoration, Miizumi Jozan discovered a hot spring in the upper reaches of the Toyohira river. In a bare rocky valley with not even a path to come and go, and within an overgrown thickly verdant primeval forest along the upper reaches of the Toyohira river Jozan discovered a natural hot spring source. He moved into this unexplored area, taking great pains and even forgetting to eat and sleep, to develop therapeutic hot spring baths to take care of the sick and injured. Miizumi Jozan's enthusiasm soon moved people, a road was constructed and word spread of Jozankei Onsen.

Jozankei is part of Shikotsu-Toya National Park near the city of Sapporo.

The area was created by volcanic activity and is home to two of Japan's most famous caldera lakes: Lake Shikotsu and Lake Toya. Mount Tarumae, Mount Yotei, and Mount Usu are volcanoes and the hot springs dotted around the area are also a result of this volcanic activity. Along with protecting this region, it is hoped that as many people come to experience this amazing natural environment.
